A 23-year-old man has been charged with attempted murder after allegedly stabbing an elderly woman in the face outside a cafe in Ballymun, Dublin, yesterday evening. Police said they had not made any arrests in the case, but they are appealing for information and have appealed for two witnesses to come forward. The incident happened at around 7.20pm outside the Hazel Kitchen on Ballymun Avenue North. A 46-year-old woman was left with serious injuries to her face and underwent surgery in St Vincent’s University Hospital. The woman’s family has said she has mobility problems and there is concern for her well-being. Her father, Willie O’Riordan, said she was “an exceptional woman with a warm heart”. “The one thing I can say is that as much as it is a shame that she has to go through what she is going through, her heart will be well guarded and protected,” he said. One witness who saw the attack said the man approached the woman and her daughter and started screaming at them “to get off the fucking planet”. Two other witnesses said they intervened and tried to calm the man down, but he then approached the victim. One of them said the man attempted to stab the victim in her neck, but she was able to move out of the way. The attacker then brandished a knife at the victim and when the witnesses intervened again, he ran off. The man is being detained at Coolock Garda station. He is expected

Breadcrumbs Related Links Over 1,000 members, guests and audience received a spectacular, dazzling experience as our trio of America's great baritones performed for over three hours in Beethoven's masterwork Fidelio, to a sold-out house on Tuesday, January 10, 2015 at the Ravinia Festival. Hailed by The New York Times as "America's Musical Architect," conductor Marin Alsop walked up the mainstage following the performance of famed Boston-based pianist Gabriel Kahane, whose brand of artistry and skill, and stunning performances, captured the attention of thousands in the sold-out house. With the audience on its feet at the conclusion of each performance, for nearly three hours, the trio created some of the most memorable highlights of this century, and showcased the best of Beethoven and his deeply felt and ever-relevant message of freedom and humanity. The program also drew upon lesser known works from the composer's later life in search of "a single interpretation, a show of solidarity and an example of what repertoire each of us is capable of," said conductor Marin Alsop. "One of the most important ways music entertains people is through its ability to transport," said Alsop. "I am honored to have been able to employ a master of orchestral music to entertain audiences." Adding to the thrill and adventure were the show's 3da54e8ca3
