He comes to Cracker Barrel with more than two decades of experience as a senior executive at other Fortune 500 companies, most recently serving as CFO at The Hershey Company and Kellogg Company. Revenue nearly doubled at Cracker Barrel, and earnings have improved, and Koch will be charged with continuing that growth. Cracker Barrel's focus on "thankful people" is "an incredible cultural focus for us," he said. Koch has been a frequent spokesperson for the National Day of Giving, a day set aside in November to encourage people to give. He said he's been encouraged by how many people are participating in the event each year. The franchise company has 23,000 workers who volunteer to take part. "Giving is a huge part of who we are. It makes us a thankful company and happy to serve customers." Koch also noted that Cracker Barrel is on pace to have more than $1 billion in annual sales by the end of 2012. The new executive must maintain Cracker Barrel's tradition of keeping tight control over its finances. "We need to do our job right," Koch said. "In our growing company, we have less leverage, so we need to be careful." He said he doesn't expect to make any significant changes in Cracker Barrel's structure or strategy. Koch said he's looking forward to working with the sales, marketing, operations, guest services and guest care teams. "We want to provide the best experience for guests in the company's stores," he said. Koch will report to CEO Bill Rogers. In September, Rogers was named chairman of the board. Koch said the company has several years of strong financial performance ahead. He expects Cracker Barrel to be generating per-share earnings of $4.25 to $4.50 next year. Koch, 59, received a bachelor's degree from Northwestern University and an MBA from the University of Chicago Booth School of Business, He has been a director at Hyatt and Bally Total Fitness.ARLINGTON — Imagine that you were a coach of that basketball team.
