What's New In?

----- This is a futuristic screensaver for Windows 98/XP/Vista. Alien Idol is a screensaver, which simulates a mysterious alien idol. The whole screensaver is made of very thin glass, very much like a construction paper. The idol is lit from different sides and on different days and times of the year. In a way it looks like a real oil lamp, but it is made of really thin glass. In a way it is like a slith of a crystal. The 4 different times of the year are represented by: Maurice Emporte and the Monkey King in the Heian Period (7th Century in Japanese history). A special effect is animated where the lights are controlled by a movement sensor. Burning lamps. New York outside during a storm. Old style filter, where there is a perfect harmony. Sleeping Buddha, which is very nice when you are trying to sleep. In ancient Chaldean mythology the dragon and the flames represent the fire of the stars. A God watching TV. You can change the colors of the idols from a very simple palette of 7 colors: Red Orange Yellow Green Blue Pale Blue Blue Sky The whole screensaver can be rotated. The Incredible Burning Cluster screensaver features a collection of images produced with node-webit, which is a new web browser that runs entirely in your operating system and in parallel with your applications. It turns your computer into a thin client for your website. The images themselves can be controlled and automated through node-webit, e.g. through XML. Furthermore, node-webit offers a wide collection of desktop-like tools (such as the clock, the calendar, the taskbar,...) and an integrated text editor. Finally, node-webit is an option for better browser compatibility. For example, a lot of sites refuse to run in a browser that uses JavaScript. When you start node-webit, the images are loaded automatically and shown in a compact image display. From there, you can click to navigate through the images. The images can be manipulated with the node-webit tools. As an example, set the size of a circle with the node-webit tool "Image" or display part of the image using the "Mask" tool. The interface to node-webit is almost the same as that of your browser. You can click to make a selection in a list
