A: Put this in your.vimrc: set editing-mode=rcedit The only reason you have to do this is if you are replacing an existing configuration file that is being edited. If you change that file's format, then Vim will be in read-only editing mode while the file is being written back. Read-only editing mode is what causes Vim to offer to edit the file. #import "DKCategorySelectionModel.h" #import #import #include "DKDefines.h" @interface DKCategorySelectionModel () @property (nonatomic, strong, readonly) NSIndexPath *firstIndex
