Police were on the scene at the El Paso Walmart Neighborhood Market shortly before 6 p.m. local time (1600 GMT) on Saturday after more than 50 men began fighting. "The police say that all the situation is calm and under control," a local resident told Reuters by telephone. "I heard more than 50 shots and police say more than 25 men died." The El Paso area is controlled by the Mexican government and shares a border with Mexico. There were no immediate reports of fatalities on the Mexican side. The dead include the 4 person being held as a person of interest and the first victim, said Fort Bliss Commander Wayne Hollingsworth in a Twitter post. Video released by the U.S. Consulate in Ciudad Juarez, Mexico, showed what appeared to be a group of 10 to 15 Hispanic men confronting a group of 20 African-Americans. It is unclear if the shooting took place inside the Walmart or on the public sidewalk nearby. At least 10 people were taken to a hospital. The shooter was also taken to a hospital for treatment, with two people in stable condition and one in fair condition, police said. A spokeswoman for the University Medical Center of El Paso said six of the victims were brought there to be treated and four were later transferred to a hospital in a different city for treatment.L'émotion est écrasante lorsque l'on apprenait l'âge avancé de l'attaquant du Tricolore, Jean-Gabriel Pageau, après un passage le troisième pour reprendre la ligne-parisienne. He is the most powerful and influential voice of the Republican campaign and we are shocked that Barack Obama has chosen him to be his new advisor. Clearly they are well connected and we are not sure what exactly Frank Luntz is advising Barack Obama on. We do know however that a big part of Frank's job in the campaign will be to focus Barack Obama's message and to make sure that all of his speeches are well scripted. Frank Luntz has been quoted saying: "The smart way to win the presidency is to lose it!" Let's just say that that is probably not an expression that should be used for a presidential candidate. Why was the Governor of Arkansas chosen as an advisor instead of Frank Luntz? We know that Frank Luntz has said that "Governor

I have a fair bit of experience using ANTS profiler and is very familiar with what questions to ask to get the most out of the information and I have pretty good understanding of the basics of how SID profiling works. I've got some sites I need to profile and am not sure exactly what the best method is to generate the most information. I know ANTS has a couple of tools to generate these SID's, however I am not sure of what R has to offer. What would be the best approach to generate these SID's and profiler data for myself? I'd like to do this on Windows. If you know of any links or resources that would be helpful please let me know. A: I've been using Rprof to profile my functions in R and was wondering about your question: Is Rprof the best way to profile in R? One of my experiments using Rprof suggested that it is not the best way. However, the experiment was using a test function with a lot of loops that just repeatedly add some of the zeros (0,0,0,0) to a vector of dimensions 100x100. The Rprof graph for this test functions are bellow and it can be seen that Rprof spends only a small percentage of time in each function. I think that this is because the Rprof report are more of an indented summary of the activity of R rather than a
