Following Jenson Button's win on the last day in Bahrain and the successive victories for Sebastian Vettel and Fernando Alonso over the following week, Hamilton led the championship for a total of 162 of the last 163 races. He left the season with the four-time world champion title, having never been a particular title challenger in recent seasons. But Hamilton told Sky Sports News: "I think the last couple of years have been tough, but this season has been quite a lot better in a lot of respects, and the team, we've had good reliability, in a lot of cases we've had good pace, so it's been quite a lot better this season. "I'm very happy with where we are. In the last couple of years, every year, we've been in the situation where we struggled a little bit. "But to get that consistency going, we've been challenging for wins and podiums, which is what we've got a mileage advantage, Hamilton has added another element to his challenge to do more damage this season. But he says that approach has been questioned on this occasion, with Vettel leading the way in terms of overtakes last year. "People mention that we've got a mileage advantage," he said. "They say if you're always slow, what's the point in being there? "But the point is that I enjoy, and I
