Adult male albino rats were kept in hyper- or hypo-osmotic solution for 10 days and total RNAs were extracted from their kidneys. Northern blotting of gel-separated alpha 1-globulin cDNAs was performed using 32P-labelled alpha 1-globulin cDNA as a probe. Exposure of animals to hyperosmotic stress for 10 days induced an increase in c-myc mRNA level, which could not be detected after hypoosmotic stress. Total RNA from the kidneys of normoosmotic rats did not hybridise with alpha 1-globulin cDNA probes. Only in hyperosmotic rats, but not in hypoosmotic animals, was a faint band detected when the blot was hybridised with the radiolabelled alpha 1-globulin cDNA probes. By methylation analysis, the activity of the DNA methyltransferases in alpha 1-globulin gene was determined. In kidneys of hyperosmotic rats, the activity was increased 10-fold. In kidneys of hypoosmotic animals, the activity was decreased 2-fold. In contrast, the level of unmethylated DNAs remained unchanged in both hyper- and hypoosmotic rats.A seat-belt apparatus is installed in a vehicle so that a passenger is restrained when the vehicle is in motion. Conventionally, various types of seat-belt apparatuses, which are capable of adjusting a restraining force applied to the passenger, are known. When a vehicle experiences a rear-end collision, an impact force is directed rearwardly, so that the passenger is moved forward. The adjustment of the restraining force is required in order to restrain the passenger in a comfortable manner. Japanese Patent Laid-Open Publication No. 07-030221 discloses a conventional seat-belt apparatus. In this apparatus, a seat-belt is looped around a dummy load body. The dummy load body has a flat plate shape, which is rectangular in cross section. The dummy load body is attached to the seat frame. The
