Field of the Invention The present invention relates to a heating equipment control apparatus and a heating equipment control method for controlling a heating equipment provided on the engine side of a vehicle, and more particularly, to a heating equipment control apparatus and a heating equipment control method for controlling an output of the heating equipment in accordance with an operation state of an engine when heating equipment such as a warm-up heater is operated to be normally warmed up. 2. Description of the Background Art In recent years, there have been proposed various heating equipment control apparatuses for controlling an output of a heating equipment such as a warm-up heater provided on the engine side in order to start a warmed-up state of the heating equipment when warming up is started in an internal combustion engine, which is one of the vehicle-mounted heating equipment. For example, according to Japanese Patent Application Laid-Open No. 2006-334323, warming-up of a warm-up heater is detected based on a temperature of the engine in an engine idling state. When the warming-up is detected, an amount of electric power to be supplied to the warm-up heater is determined based on the engine temperature and an ambient temperature, and the electric power is supplied to the warm-up heater. On the other hand, there has been proposed a technique for starting a warming-up state of the heating equipment when warming up is started in the vehicle-mounted heating equipment in order to improve comfortableness of the vehicle such as a passenger compartment. However, in a case of the above-mentioned Japanese Patent Application Laid-Open No. 2006-334323, warming-up is started when the engine is automatically idled, and the electric power is supplied to the warming-up heater. Therefore, the heating equipment may not be normally warmed up during an operation of the engine in a range of an appropriate
