Madhur Bhandarkar is one of those rare talented directors who have mastered the art of making films from newspapers. Continuing the series of his films based on . The film 'Satya' was shot in the best traditions of the film 'Satya' itself. For me, this was an unexpected, although not without meaning, decision. The film 'Satya' is an attempt to bring the events of the film into the modern world. I mean the location. While 'Satya' takes place in and around Delhi, the film takes place in the village of Satya, Bihar. The plot is based on the love story of a village boy and the daughter of a wealthy industrialist from Delhi.
