Thank you so much for the books. They all look awesome. I will look in the bookstore and buy them for my mom and my daughter. I have 2 daughters and a baby granddaughter. I love when things come into the world. I have several grandchildren from 14 to 9. I love the clothes my granddaughter is wearing. I take her to P.E. to exercise her little leg muscles. After working hard, it feels so good to get out and run for a couple of minutes. My daughters and I all love to walk in nature, but the baby can't walk yet. My younger daughter is going to try to learn some skills to do things for her own baby, which is going to make her want to have more kids. My older daughter will probably stay at home, but I want her to have a career so she can be happy and healthy. I have 2 nieces, a sister and 5 brothers. My father died when I was 16, but I have so many good memories of my parents and them being kind to me. Many of you don't know that my parents divorced when I was 2 years old and my mom was married to another man when she had me. She raised me as her own daughter. I just want you to know that you have helped my mom and my daughter, and now my two nieces know what a wonderful wonderful person their Aunt is. I want you to know that I am loving my life so much right now. I feel it was all meant to be. I have the most wonderful husband, and we have a great big happy family of 6 grandchildren. They are very special and loving and are the best thing in our lives. I love helping people who need help. I am learning that the one who is supposed to help us has a lot more problems than we do. My husband is a very hard worker, and sometimes he does a lot of fun things when I am not looking. Last Christmas he went to France and bought me an hourglass with a cork inside it that turns slowly so that every time I think about him, he will be happy. In spite of his stress at work, he found a beautiful part of the country to go to for a few days, and he bought the clock as a gift for me. He said that when he was a kid, his parents thought he'd make a good priest when he became a man. He loves to work with wood and has built several antique desks and cabinets. He also has my favorite red kitchen sink. He gave it to me last year when we moved into our farmhouse. I saw it in a picture in a magazine, and I had to have it. I found a good local antique store and bought it for half its value. He is an expert on antique kitchen sinks. I am so proud of him. He cuts the cork out of the sand of the hourglass when it has run down to see if he has my love in his heart. He also knows how to clean them up. He has my favorite brown English sink. We spend a lot of time just sitting and talking. I love when he is totally in the mood to talk and listen, and he is very good at that. I have my work to do on Sundays, but I love it. My husband can play his harmonica and sing, and that is one of my favorite things to do. I love to listen to him. He is a very gifted musician, and he writes hymns and likes to pray. We are learning to have a better appreciation for each other. This blog has opened up the whole world for me. I have found out about other blogs that I had no idea about.

Nancy and Cheri, Both your names in the title of this post truly say what I want to say. Please know that you are in my prayers and that everything in this world is perfectly normal and under control. I had to type out the whole title because I could not get my words out in a clear voice. I wanted to say that I am a fan of your work. I found you through a friend. I am recently widowed and having a rough time. We have met before in Dallas, and I had the honor of meeting you again on the New Year's Party for the Sewing Guild. I am 72 years young and still sew. The world is changing quickly, and I have just sold my house and moved to Florida. I am a single parent and am not looking forward to the social scene and all of the dates that are supposed to be easy. Like you, we both have book deals we hope will be published in 2019! Keep sewing and God Bless, Heidi Cheri, I cried all the way to Florida with you. I think of you constantly and pray for you. You are strong and you have faith in something bigger than yourself. You seem to have a good family and friends to support you in this difficult time of loss. I know it will not be easy or fun for you to go through this, but you are a strong and brave woman. I admire you for your ability to persevere. I am sending you love and support. You have inspired me so much during this time, and I will always think of you when I sew. Thanks for your friendship. Cheri, I have admired you for so many years. You have always been inspirational to me. I watched your shows as you were coming along. My Mom and I would watch a few episodes. She loved it and I have always hoped to live to sew with you and watch the shows with you. Mom passed away 3 years ago and I continue to watch your shows for her. I have always enjoyed learning more from you and I don't think I will ever tire of your soft beauty and wise teaching. Even though I have not sewn a lot these last years, there was a moment when I found myself finishing one of your patterns. I have been sewing and knitting for years and was not sure I had any stamina left. But, I was able to sew with one of your patterns. I am only 76 and have had a good life. I have two children and 3 grandchildren and my love of sewing and knitting was not a fixture like it was for my Mom. After she died, I started looking for more sewing and knitting patterns and found your site. The last year I have been sewing in earnest and have learned a lot from you. You are funny, sensitive, warm, and beautiful. Thank you for your warmth and the inspiration and knowledge you have given me. It has become a meditation for me. I'm going to keep sending you prayers for healing and strength and may I add that I'm sending you greetings from Southern California. I think of you so often. I have so many friends who are still mourning the loss of their loved ones. It has been such a hard year for us all and your friendship has been a great consolation and encouragement for me. With love and prayers for you 5ec8ef588b
