When iTricks first introduced this product, I questioned what would be the best use of the iPad Pro. Now that we have Quality Themes, we can look at the iPad Pro as an image monitor with a camera. On this basis, I think that this will be the best iPad Pro use case. The fact that you can use a stylus with this application and that it understands pressure sensitivity is very interesting. We're definitely looking forward to seeing what other applications come from this partnership. You cannot make any false sales claims, and I rarely do. I just know what I need to do in order to get the most out of software like I said before. And that's why I came to the $8,000 iPad Pro, not because I would be one of the first using it. In my shop, I'm honest when I say that you can spend a lot more on a computer that will do x task just as well. Fujifilm just made the strongest case for selling the iPad Pro over a Mac Pro. Everyone knows the iPad Pro is a great platform for multitasking that allows a number of different apps at the same time. Its camera is terrible for RAW, however the torch app is amazing for taking selfies. The Pro models are coming soon, and this will be the justification for investing, especially since the machine is far stronger than a Mac Pro. Being a graphic designer and web developer, I know I could do everything I can do on a Mac Pro simply by using a MacBook Pro with the software I need. For those who might want more of a desktop experience, even the Pro model is extremely strong as a replacement for a Mac Pro.

The timeline is to phase out Photoshop - 3D by making its functionality available only through certain 3D-specific panels implemented in Photoshop itself.
