It primarily focused on Asian programming, including Chinese, Japanese, Korean and Indian programming, and dedicated a significant amount of its programming to Canada's Chinese community. Xtra also broadcast various forms of sports programming, mainly hockey games. In 2015, the channel rebranded as an Asian specialty channel, replacing the previous focus on Canadian content with a focus on international programming. Corus also operated various ethnic specialty channels in Canada, including the SRC, Rotima, History (2001-2003), and Ethnic Channels Group (2009-2016). History Xtra was founded by a group of Chinese-Canadian businessmen in January 1996, with the stated purpose of providing more Canadian content for the Chinese community, as it was the dominant minority group in Canada. Xtra's head office was initially located in Calgary, Alberta. Xtra was announced in September 1993, when Jim Ho posted a press release that was sent to a list of 200 media outlets and potential investors. The channel launched on March 1, 1996, broadcasting from Vancouver, British Columbia. The channel became a profit-making venture in January 1997, with the sale of advertising time to those in the Chinese community, a growth opportunity that was valued at $2.5 million annually. The channel was launched with a lineup of 20 hours of programming. Since then, the channel's programming has expanded from 20 hours to 70 hours a week, with the addition of new series, the March 2000 launch of the spin-off channel Xtra Kids, and the December 2006 launch of Xtra Max, an additional high definition feed and a product of the partnership between Xtra and Shaw Media's Sprout Sports. During its early years, Xtra was sold as a joint venture with Peter Hong and Jee Chen, both from successful Chinese Canadian publishing companies. While Xtra originally owned 100% of the channel, it sold 45% of Xtra to Peter Hong and Jee Chen in 1998. In January 2004, Xtra reacquired the 100% ownership, and moved its offices from Vancouver to Toronto. Xtra began an expansion
